INNOVATIVE THINKING

Developing original ideas isn't dependent only on one's ability, it's also important to acquire techniques to develop new ideas. When these "idea creation techniques" are systematically applied, the productivity of idea generation can be substantially improved. To see results with these techniques it's important to check one's "paradigm".

We assume when organizations operate over a long period of time, their way of thinking regarding products, jobs, and clients becomes stiff and inflexible. In this course, our focus is on helping others discover new ways of thinking and doing things..
